610.347.9988 | 522 W Maple St., Allentown

1/3: Queer Hollywood Before Hays | Will Hays was the politician who oversaw ‘The Code’ which endeavored to censor objectionable scenes in movies. Before 1934, The Code was more of a guideline than a mandate, and Queer imagery was far more frequent. We’ll look at what censorship aimed to do, and how Hollywood either caved, or got around it. LGBTQ actors, directors, and producers were part of Hollywood in those days, and like today, some were out and some were deeply closeted. This class will discuss that period which shined with great work and was also tarnished by anti-LGBTQ oppression. | Thu 6–8pm | free
